COLERIDGE

His eye saw all things in the symmetry
Of true and just proportion; and his ear
That inner tone could hear
Which flows beneath the outer: therefore he
Was as a mighty shell, fashioning all
The winds to one right sound, ample and musical. . . .

No loftier, purer soul than his hath ever
With awe revolved the planetary page,
From infancy to age,
Of knowledge; sedulous and proud to give her
The whole of his great heart for her own sake;
For what she is; not what she does, or what can make.

TO

MY FRIEND AND TEACHER,

PROFESSOR ALBERT HENRY SMYTH,

TO WHOM I AM INDEBTED FOR

MY FIRST INTEREST IN THE

works are entered only under the year of their first publication. Moreover, for many of the later and less interesting editions abbreviated titles are quoted. The continuous presence of The Rime of the Ancient Mariner upon the list of required reading for college entrance-examinations has resulted in a deluge of annotated editions of that poem and nothing would be gained by quoting their elaborate titles in full. The alinement of titles has therefore not been attempted because mere considerations of space forbade its consistent application to all editions, and because there are no problems in the bibliography of Coleridge that warranted its use for the early editions alone. Welcome the day when the reproduction of all important title-pages in facsimile will relegate to the past the necessity for such a bewildering and disfiguring device as the alinement of titles.

A sound principle enjoins the use of the simplest classification and the fewest subdivisions; but in the present instance it has seemed necessary to list separately other works which include contributions by Coleridge. There can be no serious objection to the inclusion of The Lyrical Ballads or The Annual Anthology among the editions of Coleridge, yet the same is not true of the many less significant works belonging to this group. The reasons for a separate list of his contributions to periodicals are self-evident. Much of Coleridge's early hack-work is buried, possibly forever, in the newspapers and magazines of his period. In his correspondence he speaks of writing for The Critical Review about 1796, but nothing in that review has been definitely attributed to him. Also the less interesting part of his contributions to Daniel Stuart's newspapers has been left undisturbed in their dusty files. It would be a useless and unreliable proceeding to examine those repositories of oblivion, and without due verification to "find traces of Coleridge's style" in their forgotten pages.

The sixth division of this bibliography refers to Coleridge's published letters. The numerous widely scattered citations may be supplemented by reference to the Introduction to Mr. Ernest Hartley Coleridge's edition of the Letters (1895). The contents of those two octavo volumes are but a small part of an extensive correspondence which tended, in the later years, toward interminable philosophical and religious disquisitions. Although Coleridge's letters in general lack style and evince a want of the forethought that prompted Byron, Stevenson, and other self-conscious immortals to indite their epistles with a view to the future, they are of the highest importance both as literary and personal documents. Mr. Ernest Coleridge, who is the custodian of many originals and transcripts of unpublished letters, expressed the opinion that the " coming of the milder day " must be awaited for the publication of the complete correspondence. The present bibliography does not seek to give an account of any unpublished letters or manuscripts, the most noteworthy item of which is, perhaps, the two quarto volumes on Logic dictated by Coleridge to an amanuensis and recently in the possession of Mr. C. A. Ward of Chingford Hatch.

The biographies of Coleridge are listed in chronological order and are but briefly characterized, as the student may consult the reviews enumerated in the subjoined notes. The basis of the list of works referring to Coleridge was the corresponding section of Mr. J. P. Anderson's bibliography appended to Mr. Hall Caine's Life of Coleridge (1887) and is here extended to about three times its original length. Wherever page references are not given, it is to be understood that various passages refer to Coleridge and that the reader should consult the index of the volume in question. In enumerating the magazine articles on Coleridge, an effort has been made to go beyond Poole's Index and the periodicals now catalogued by the coöperative system. The important literary weeklies have been examined separately, and such defunct contemporary monthlies as The British Critic, The Critical Review, The Monthly Review, and others have been searched for early notices of Coleridge's works. All these critiques have been listed under the work and edition which they reviewed, so that the curious reader can learn what the untutored literary hacks of 1796 thought of the Poems, or what the critical potentates of 1816 made of Christabel.

The catalogue of Coleridge's marginalia should be the most interesting portion of the present bibliography. Apart from the British Museum Catalogue's list of the seventy-odd titles of marginalia in that Library, there has been no previous attempt to enumerate the books annotated by Coleridge. The three hundred and forty works of that character here listed include some of the most noteworthy volumes in existence. Everyone is familiar with Coleridge's habit of writing comments or even letters to friends on the margins and fly-leaves of his books; but have these volumes hitherto been recognized at their true value by the collector? The intrinsic merit of Coleridge's marginal criticism makes him the leader of the very few men who have justified this otherwise atrocious habit; and every book thus honored by his annotations is now unique. None recognized more clearly the value of Coleridge's propensity than his immediate friends. De Quincey wrote:

"Coleridge often spoiled a book; but, in the course of doing this, he enriched that book with so many and so valuable notes, tossing about him, with such lavish profusion, from such a cornucopia of discursive reading, and such a fusing intellect commentaries so many-angled and so many-coloured that I have envied many a man whose luck has placed him in the way of such injuries; and that man must have been a churl (though, God knows! too often this churl has existed) who could have found in his heart to complain."

Similarly, Charles Lamb, the truest lover of old books, wrote in that oft-quoted passage at the conclusion of The Two Races of Men:—

"Reader, if haply thou art blessed with a moderate collection, be shy of showing it; or, if thy heart overfloweth to lend them, lend thy books; but let it be to such a one as S. T. C.; he will return them (generally anticipating the time appointed) with usury, enriched with annotations tripling their value. I have had experience. Many of these precious MSS. of his (in matter oftentimes, and almost in quantity not unfrequently, vying with the originals), in no very clerkly hand—legible in my Daniel, in old Burton, in Sir Thomas Browne, and those abstruser cogitations of the Greville, now, alas! wandering in Pagan lands. I counsel thee, shut not thy heart nor thy library against S. T. C."

Wherever possible, an attempt has been made to learn something of the history of each book. Nothing affords more satisfaction to a collector than the "pedigree" of a treasured volume. Southey expressed the sentiment most aptly when he said:—

"A book is the more valuable to me when I know to whom it has belonged, and through what 'scenes and changes' it has passed. I would have its history recorded in the fly-leaf; and I am sorry when I see the name of a former owner obliterated in a book, or the plate of his arms defaced."

A fair illustration of the interesting character of Coleridge's marginalia is the famous folio Beaumont and Fletcher that is now jealously guarded in the British Museum. In his delightful essay on Old China, Lamb tells us that he wore a shabby brown suit threadbare in order to lavish with a clear conscience the mighty sum of fifteen or sixteen shillings upon the old folio. He tells us how he eyed it for weeks at Barker's in Covent Garden before he made up his mind to the purchase, and how, after reaching a decision at ten o'clock of a Saturday night, he hastened to the shop, roused the old bookseller who was just setting bedwards, and secured the precious relic. Lugging his treasure home, his impatience would suffer no delay till daybreak; he must gloat over its pages at once and repair its loose leaves with paste. This is the volume that was afterwards lent to Coleridge, who made various inscriptions upon its margins, including the pathetic "God bless you, dear Charles Lamb; I am dying: I feel I have not many weeks left." For sheer literary interest, what rare imprint could afford half as much pleasure as the possession of that battered volume from which the gentle Elia and S. T. C.—two of the most sympathetic critics that ever read an Elizabethan drama—studied their Beaumont and Fletcher?

Unfortunately, the details concerning many other marginalia are not so complete. In some cases the present whereabouts of the volume are unknown, notwithstanding the fact that a request for such information was widely advertised both in England and America. This is especially true of the thirty-nine works from the library of Coleridge's disciple, Dr. Joseph Henry Green, which were sold in 1884 by Scribner and Welford, of New York City. A casual glance at the list of marginalia will reveal the fact that many of the notes, particularly those in the German philosophical works, are as yet unpublished, and should afford ample material for a substantial supplement to the Literary Remains already in print.

The remaining sections deal with minor matters that lie partly beyond the usual scope of a bibliography and present details that will perhaps appeal more to the student than to the collector; but they serve their purpose if they aid in illustrating Coleridge's prominence among the literary characters of his time. In spite of the extent of the bibliographical material, it must be admitted that Coleridge has not been well-treated by posterity. The fact that the only uniform edition of his works was edited in 1853 by the late Professor W. G. T. Shedd hardly redounds to the credit of English scholarship. It is true that Shedd's edition is not complete and that, save for its admirable introduction, it is practically a series of uniform reprints from the London editions by Henry Nelson Coleridge and Sara Coleridge; nevertheless it is strange that no standard English edition has been attempted. Within the last decade the late James Dykes Campbell prepared a most satisfactory edition of the Poetical Works, and a trustworthy memoir of Coleridge that ranks high as a model of painstaking erudition. Mr. Ernest Hartley Coleridge has edited the Anima Poetæ and the already-mentioned selection of Letters. All of these appeared between 1893–1895, and since that time the most significant contribution to Coleridgeana has been the valuable introductory essay to Dr. Richard Garnett's Selections from the Poetry of Coleridge (1898). What is most needed is a modern authoritative edition of Coleridge's complete works—an edition worthy of a place beside Knight's Wordsworth, Ainger's Lamb, Forman's Keats, and the Prothero-Coleridge Byron.

There is undoubtedly much in Coleridge's prose and verse that is strange to the ears of the present generation; yet the same holds true of the other authors just mentioned. No poet of his century wrote greater poetry than Coleridge; no critic uttered more illuminating criticism. His friends esteemed him in a manner that often arouses our wonder. Southey called him the "mightiest of his generation" and regarded all other men as "mere children to him." Dr. Thomas Arnold bluntly declared: "I think with all his faults old Sam was more of a great man than any who has lived within the four seas in my memory." Other well-known eulogies may well be spared to permit the quotation of a noteworthy passage from a letter written to Sara Coleridge by the late Aubrey De Vere:—

"A thousand thanks to you, my dear friend, for that lock of your father's hair. I could hardly have valued more a tress from a saint's head, than I value one which may once have touched that 'God-like forehead' seen so often in my youthful fancies, but never, alas, in the light of day. I shall never again feel that veneration for any other man which my sister and I used to feel for your father, when we read him together, and thought, on laying down the book, that we could gather amaranths from every meadow. . . . I threw off Byron early, as a vicious young horse throws off a bad rider, and I have outgrown Shelley, though not at all my admiration for his wonderful genius; but there remains one unsubverted throne occupied by an aged man with dreamy eyes, and lips once brightened by Parnassian springs, and still breathing Elysian airs. I believe his name is S. T. C."

Men are not wont to write thus without cause; but if we are tempted to regard such utterances as the offspring of a temporary enthusiasm, let us at least cap the climax with De Quincey's assertion that Coleridge's was "the largest and most spacious intellect, the subtlest and most comprehensive that has yet existed among men." Whatever may be our conclusions concerning these extraordinary tributes from men who came under the spell of Cole-ridge's philosophy and his marvellous conversation, we must remember that the chorus of poets has likewise united in praising him

> "Whose eyes grew dim with straining toward the sun,
> And his wings weakened, and his angel's tongue
> Lost half the sweetest song was ever sung,
> But like the strain half uttered, earth hears none.
> Nor shall man hear till all men's songs are done."

However, the scope of this preface hardly demands a eulogy of Coleridge. No halting tribute is needed at this time to emphasize the fact that he was an inspired bard of the highest rank and an intellectual giant towering head and shoulders above his generation.

In conclusion, a word of acknowledgment is due to those who have assisted in gathering the following material. The request for information concerning Coleridge's marginalia was advertised through the courtesy of the editors of The Academy, The Athenæum, The Bibliographer, The Bookman, The Literary Collector, The New York Times, Notes and Queries, and The Philadelphia Public Ledger. The response, though less general than expected, brought important additions to the list, and soon showed that it would be impossible to acknowledge here all correspondence and assistance. Of the fifty or sixty names of those to whom I am indebted, I can mention only the following: Sir George Beaumont, Coleorton; Dr. James B. Clemens, New York; Mr. Ernest Hartley Coleridge, Croydon; Mr. J. B. Davies, New York; Mr. Robert Dodd, New York; Dr. Richard Garnett, London; Col. Thomas Wentworth Higginson, Cambridge, Mass.; Mr. Charles Higham, London; Hon. George F. Hoar, Worcester, Mass.; Mr. T. Hutchinson, London; Mr. W. Dawson Johnston, Washington; Mr. C. F. Libbie, Boston; Mr. Ernest D. North, New York; Mr. R. A. Potts, London; Col. W. F. Prideaux, Ramsgate; Mrs. Henry A. St. John, Ithaca, New York; Hon. Stuart M. Samuel, M. P., London; Mr. Harry B. Smith, New York; Mr. James R. Smith, New Haven; Professor Albert H. Smyth, Philadelphia; Miss Emily Sugden, Hartford; Dr. Robert Ellis Thompson, Philadelphia; Mr. W. A. White, New York; Mr. W. Hale White, Crowborough, Sussex; and Mr. Ellis Yarnall, Haverford, Pa. In particular, I wish to mention the kindness of Lord Coleridge, of Heath Court, Ottery St. Mary, in preparing the extensive list of marginalia now in his possession; and to acknowledge the valuable suggestions of my friend, Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, who assisted in the uninspiring task of proof-reading.

The publication of the present bibliography will doubtlessly disclose the whereabouts of many elusive marginalia here catalogued, and will bring various others to light. Any information concerning such volumes, or indicating errors and omissions in the following pages will be gratefully acknowledged. It is possible that enough new material may be gathered to warrant the publication of a supplement at some future time.

An augmented edition in pamphlet form was announced, but Mr. Shepherd died before its publication. See Notes and Queries, ibid., VII, p. 503, note, and VIII, p. 60. See also next item.

15. Prideaux, William Francis. The Bibliography of Coleridge. A Bibliographical List Arranged in Chronological Order of the Published and Privately-Printed Writings in Verse and Prose of Samuel Taylor Coleridge, including his Contributions to Annuals, Magazines, and Periodical Publications; Posthumous Works, Memoirs, Editions, etc. By the late Richard Herne Shepherd. Revised, Corrected, and Enlarged by Colonel W. F. Prideaux, C. S. I. 12mo., pp. x+[2]+95. London (Frank Hollings), 1900.

This extensive bibliography reprints Shepherd's notes but is otherwise an almost independent work. It contains two appendices: (a) A description of a Latin declamation written by Coleridge in 1792, and preserved at Jesus College, Cambridge; (b) an almost complete list of the late J. Dykes Campbell's contributions to The Athenæum on Coleridge.

III. EDITIONS

1794.

1. The Fall of Robespierre. An Historic Drama. By S. T. Coleridge, of Jesus College, Cambridge. Cambridge: Printed by Benjamin Flower, for W. H. Lunn, and J. and J. Merrill; and sold by J. March, Norwich, 1794. [Price One Shilling.] 8vo., pp. 37.

   See Analytical Rev., XX (480–481); British Critic, V (539–540); and Critical Rev., XII, n. s. (260–262). The dedicatory letter to H. Martin, Esq., of Jesus College, was dated September 22, 1794. The first act only was written by Coleridge, the second and third by Southey. Bound with the volume were proposals (slightly abridged from The Cambridge Intelligencer of June 14, and July 26, 1794) for a subscription publication by Coleridge—"Imitations from the Modern Latin Poets." The Fall of Robespierre was reprinted in Coleridge's Poet. Works (Philadelphia, 1831); also in Literary Remains (1836) and in the editions of 1877, 1880 and 1893 of his Poetical Works.

1795.

2. A Moral and Political Lecture, delivered at Bristol. By S. T. Coleridge, of Jesus College, Cambridge. [Motto from Akenside.] Bristol: Printed by George Routh, in Corn-Street. Price, Six-pence. 8vo., pp. 19.

   See Critical Rev., XIII, n. s., p. 455. The lecture was probably printed soon after its oral delivery in February, 1795. It is substantially the same as the first of the Conciones ad Populum.

3. Conciones ad Populum. or Addresses to the People. By S. T. Coleridge. [Bristol:] 1795. 12mo., pp. 69.

   See Analytical Rev., XXIII (90–91); British Critic, VII (682–683); Critical Rev., XVI, n. s., p. 216; and Monthly Rev., XIX, n. s. (80–81). The Preface is dated Clevedon, November 16, 1795. This edition appeared in dark-blue wrapper with half-title only. It bore no publisher's name, and, although noticed in all the reviews, is usually described as "privately printed." The text was reprinted in Essays on his Own Times (1850).

4. The Plot Discovered; or an Address to the People, against Ministerial Treason. By S. T. Coleridge. Bristol, 1795. Sm. 8vo., pp. 52.

   See Analytical Rev., XXIII (91–92); British Critic, VII, p. 562; Critical Rev., XVI, n. s. (216–217); and Monthly Rev., XIX, n. s. p. 81. The half-title reads: "A Protest against Certain Bills.

Bristol: Printed for the Author, November 28, 1795." Reprinted in Essays on his Own Times (1850). The original MS. is in the George W. Childs Collection, Drexel Institute, Philadelphia.

1796.

5. The Watchman: a Periodical Publication, in Prose and Verse. Published by the Author, S. T. Coleridge, Bristol, and sold by all the Booksellers and Newscarriers in the Town and Country. Bristol, 1796. 8vo., pp. 324.

Ten numbers were published, appearing every eighth day, between March 1, and May 13, 1796. See The Prospectus of Coleridge's 'Watchman' by J. D. Campbell in The Athenæum, 1893, II (808–809), and in Campbell's memoir of Coleridge, p. 285. The following poems appeared for the first time in The Watchman: To a Young Lady (March 1); Ad Lyram (March 9); The Hour when we shall meet again (March 17); Fragments from an Unpublished Poem (March 25); Recollection (April 2); Count Rumford (April 2); On Observing a Blossom (April 11); and To a Primrose (April 27).

6. Poems on Various Subjects, by S. T. Coleridge, late of Jesus College, Cambridge.

Felix curarum, cui non Heliconia cordi
Serta, nec imbelles Parnassi e vertice laurus!
Sed viget ingenium, et magnos accinctus in usus
Fert animus quascunque vices.—Nos tristia vitæ
Solamur cantu.—Stat. Silv. Lib. IV. 4.

London: Printed for G. G. and J. Robinsons, and J. Cottle, Bookseller, Bristol, 1796. 8vo., pp. xvi + 188 + 1 of errata.

See Analytical Rev., XXIII (610–612); British Critic, VII (549–550); Critical Rev., XVII, n. s. (209–212); and Monthly Rev., XX, n. s. (194–199). This (first) edition of Coleridge's poems contained four sonnets (VII–XI–XII–XIII) by Charles Lamb, and part of another (XV) was written by Southey. For the Preface and Table of Contents of this volume see Poet. Works, ed. Campbell, pp. (537–539).

7. Ode on the Departing Year By S. T. Coleridge. [Motto from Æschylus.] Bristol; Printed by N. Biggs, and sold by J. Parsons, Paternoster-Row, London, 1796. 4to., pp. 16.

See Critical Rev., XX, n. s. (343–344); and Monthly Rev., XXII, n. s. (342–343). The volume contains also the Lines addressed to a Young Man of Fortune, which appeared in The Cambridge In- telligencer on December 17, 1796. The Ode appeared in the same paper on the last day of the year, in a version sixty-two lines shorter than the quarto text. The dedicatory letter is addressed to Thomas Poole.

1797.

8. Poems by S. T. Coleridge, Second Edition. To which are now added Poems by Charles Lamb, and Charles Lloyd.

Duplex nobis vinculum, et amicitiæ et similium junctarumque Camœnarum; quod utinam neque mors solvat, neque temporis longinquitas! Groscoll. Epist. ad Car. Utenhov. et Ptol. Lux. Tast.

Printed by N. Biggs, for J. Cottle, Bristol, and Messrs. Robinsons, London, 1797. 8vo., pp. xx+278.

See Critical Rev., XXIII, n. s. (266–268); also Bookworm, V (53–54). For Preface, Table of Contents, etc., see Poet. Works, ed. Campbell, pp. (539–544).

9. Fears in Solitude, Written in 1798 during the alarm of an invasion. To which are added, FRANCE, AN ODE; and FROST AT MIDNIGHT. By S. T. Coleridge. London: Printed for J. Johnson, in St. Paul's Church-yard, 1798. 4to., pp. 23.

See Analytical Rev., XXVIII (590–592); and Monthly Rev., XXIX, n. s. (43–47). France had appeared in The Morning Post on April 16, 1798, as Recantation: an Ode; the other poems were printed in this volume for the first time. The half-title on the outer leaf adds [Price One Shilling and Six-Pence.] See no. 15, infra.

Lyrical Ballads. See under Works including Contributions by Coleridge, no. 6.

1800.

10. The Piccolomini, or the First Part of WALLENSTEIN, a Drama in Five Acts. Translated from the German of Frederick Schiller by S. T. Coleridge. London: Printed for T. N. Longman and O. Rees, Paternoster Row, 1800. 8vo., pp. iv+214+[1].

Published in April, 1800, with an announcement of the speedy publication of The Death of Wallenstein, Wallenstein's Camp, and an Essay on the Genius of Schiller. The half-title indicated that the play was "Translated from a manuscript copy attested by the author."

11. The Death of Wallenstein. A Tragedy in Five Acts. Translated from the German of Frederick Schiller by S. T. Coleridge. London: Printed for T. N. Longman and O. Rees, Paternoster Row, by G. Woodfall, No. 22 Paternoster Row, 1800. 8vo., pp. [iv]+157. With an engraved portrait of Wallenstein.

Appeared in June, 1800, with a general title-page for the two plays. See British Critic, XVIII (542–545); Critical Rev., XXX, n. s. (175–185); Monthly Mag., X, p. 611; and Monthly Rev., XXXIII, n. s. (127–131). The essay on Schiller and the translation of the Prelude were abandoned.

1803.

12. Poems, by S. T. Coleridge. [Motto from Statius as in the edition of 1796.] Third Edition. London: Printed by N. Biggs, Crane-court, Fleet-street, for T. N. Longman and O. Rees, Pater-noster-Row, 1803. 12mo., pp. xi+202.

Substantially a reprint of the second edition, with the omission of the poems of Lamb and Lloyd, and six of Coleridge's own poems. See Poetical Works, ed. Campbell, p. 545, and Shepherd-Prideaux, pp. (31–34).

1809–1810.

13. The Friend: A Literary, Moral, and Political Weekly Paper, excluding Personal and Party Politics and Events of the Day. Conducted by S. T. Coleridge, of Grasmere, Westmoreland. . . . Penrith: Printed and Published by J. Brown, 1809, 1810. 8vo.

This periodical appeared in twenty-seven weekly numbers (with occasional lapses) between June 1, 1809, and March 15, 1810. The original manuscript is in the Forster Collection at South Kensington. Wordsworth contributed to The Friend, but Coleridge supplied most of the "copy." In its pages appeared the following poems for the first time: The Three Graves, Parts III–IV (Sept. 21, 1809); Epitaph on Himself (Nov. 12, 1809); and A Tombless Epitaph (Nov. 23, 1809). See John Foster in Eclectic Rev., VII (912–931).

14. The Friend; A Series of Essays. By S. T. Coleridge. [Motto from Claudian.] London: Printed for Gale and Curtis, Paternoster-Row, 1812. 8vo., pp. 448.

This edition consists of the original numbers bound up with a supplement prepared by Coleridge. It has never been reprinted in this form.

15. Poems By S. T. Coleridge, Esq. [On verso of title:] Law and Gilbert, Printers, St. John's Square, London. 8vo., pp. 16. (Similar imprint at foot of p. 16.)

Formerly regarded as a private reprint of the three poems published in Fears in Solitude (1798). Col. Prideaux, in Notes and Queries (Ninth Series), X, p. 310, described it as a tirage-à-part from the Poetical Register (1812). See infra under Contributions to Periodicals, no. 81. There is a copy in the Rowfant Collection of the late Frederick Locker-Lampson; another in the library of Mr. R. A. Potts, London; and the separate leaves from the Poetical Register are bound up in a volume of pamphlets (vol. 97) formerly belonging to Southey and now in the Forster Collection at South Kensington.

1813.

16. Remorse. A Tragedy, in Five Acts. By S. T. Coleridge.

> Remorse is as the heart, in which it grows:
> If that be gentle, it drops balmy dews
> Of true repentance; but if proud and gloomy,
> It is a poison-tree, that pierced to the inmost
> Weeps only tears of poison!
> Act I. Scene I.

London: Printed for W. Pople, 67, Chancery Lane, 1813. Price Three Shillings. 8vo., pp. xii + 72.

See Analectic Rev., II (286–300), which is reprinted from Christian Observer, 1813, pp. (228–238); London Mag., I, p. 436; and Monthly Rev., LXXI, n. s. (82–93). See also Literary Panorama, XIII, p. 462. The Prologue (by Lamb) and the Epilogue (by Coleridge) appeared in The Morning Chronicle, January 28, 1813. The play, which was a revision of Osorio, written in 1797, was produced at Drury Lane on January 23, 1813, and ran for twenty nights. See Shepherd-Prideaux, pp. (40–42), and Poetical Works, ed. Campbell, pp. (545–548, 649–650).

17. Remorse. A Tragedy, in Five Acts. By S. T. Coleridge. [Motto as in first edition.] Second Edition. London: Printed for W. Pople, 67, Chancery Lane, 1813. Price Three Shillings. 8vo., pp. x + 78.

See Quarterly Rev., XI (177–190). This edition varies considerably from the text of the first.

18. Remorse. A Tragedy, in Five Acts. . . . Third Edition. London. . . . 1813. 8vo., pp. x + 78.

A reprint of the second edition, with no other change than the indication on the title-page.

19. Remorse. A Tragedy, in Five Acts. . . . From the Second London Edition of 1813. New York: Longworth, 1813. 24mo., pp. 68.

1816.

20. Christabel: Kubla Khan, a Vision; The Pains of Sleep. By S. T. Coleridge, Esq. London: Printed for John Murray, Albemarle-street, By William Bulmer and Co. Cleveland-row, St. James's, 1816. 8vo., pp. vii+64+[4].

See Anti-Jacobin Rev., L (632–636); Edinburgh Rev., XXVII (58–67) by [William Hazlitt?]; Literary Panorama, IV, n. s. (561–565); and Monthly Rev., LXXXII, n. s. (22–25), reprinted in E. Stevenson's Early Reviews (pp. 17–22). See also article, Mr. Coleridge and the Edinburgh Review in The Examiner, 1816, pp. (743–744).

21. Christabel: Kubla Khan, a Vision; The Pains of Sleep. By S. T. Coleridge, Esq. Second Edition. London . . . 1816.

This edition differs from the first only in title-page, as above.

22. Christabel: Kubla Khan, a Vision; The Pains of Sleep. By S. T. Coleridge, Esq. Third Edition. London . . . 1816.

A verbatim reprint of the second edition. Mr. T. Hutchinson, in Notes and Queries (Ninth Series), X (388–389) needlessly questioned the existence of this third edition. See ibid., X (429–430, 489–490) by W. F. Prideaux, T. Hutchinson, and John Louis Haney.

23. Christabel: Kubla Khan, a Vision; The Pains of Sleep. By S. T. Coleridge, Esq. . . . Boston . . . 1816.

First American from the first London edition.

24. The Statesman's Manual; or the Bible the Best Guide to Political Skill and Foresight: A Lay Sermon, addressed to the Higher Classes of Society, with an Appendix, containing Comments and Essays connected with the Study of the Inspired Writings. By S. T. Coleridge, Esq.

"Ad ist hæc quæso vos, qualia cunque primo videantur aspectu, adtendite, ut qui vobis forsan insanire videar, saltem quibus insaniam rationibus cognoscatis."

London: Printed for Gale and Fenner, Pater-Noster Row; J. M. Richardson, Royal Exchange; and Hatchard, Piccadilly, 1816. 8vo., pp. 65+xlvii.

See Edinburgh Rev., XXVII (444–459) attributed to William Hazlitt; also the discreditable articles by Hazlitt in The Examiner, September 8, 1816, and December 29, 1816.

1817.

25. "Blessed are ye that sow beside all Waters!" A LAY SERMON, addressed to the Higher and Middle Classes, on the existing Distresses and Discontents. By S. T. Coleridge, Esq. [Motto from Heraclitus, with English paraphrase.] If ye do not hope, ye will not find: for in despairing ye block up the mine at its mouth! ye extinguish the torch, even when ye are already in the shaft. London: Printed for Gale and Fenner, Paternoster Row; J. M. Richardson, Royal Exchange; and J. Hatchard, Piccadilly, 1817. 8vo., pp. xxxi + 134.

See Monthly Repository, XII (299–301); also ibid., XII (213–216, 268–272), for two letters signed S. N. D.—"To S. T. Coleridge, Esq., on the Attack on the Unitarians contained in his Second Lay Sermon."

26. Sibylline Leaves: A Collection of Poems. By S. T. Coleridge, Esq. London: Rest Fenner, 23, Paternoster Row, 1817. 8vo., pp. x + [2] of errata + 303.

The fourth edition of Coleridge's poems. For Preface and Contents, see Poet. Works, ed. Campbell, pp. (550–552). Reviewed in British Critic, L (460–481); Literary Gazette, 1817, II (49–51); and Monthly Rev., LXXXVIII, n. s. (24–38). The Rhyme of the Ancient Mariner appeared in this collection for the first time as the acknowledged work of Coleridge. See London Mag., II (70–74). Coleridge intended to publish Sibylline Leaves as the second volume of a work of which the first volume was to contain Biographia Literaria. The sheets were printed with the indication, "Vol. II." in the signatures long before the increasing bulk of the latter work necessitated two volumes for itself and rendered the original plan impracticable.

27. Biographia Literaria; or, Biographical Sketches of my Literary Life and Opinions. By S. T. Coleridge, Esq. Vol. I. [II.] London: Rest Fenner, 23, Paternoster Row, 1817. 2 vols. 8vo., pp. 296; 309.

This was the only English edition during Coleridge's lifetime; the second edition appeared thirty years later (1847). See Blackwood's Mag., II (3–18), by [John Wilson] and the vindicatory letter (ibid., pp. 285–288) by J. S. two months later; British Critic, L (460–481); Edinburgh Rev., XXVIII (488–515), by [William Hazlitt?]; Monthly Rev., LXXXVIII (124–138); and Westminster Rev., XXXIII (257–302).

28. Biographia Literaria: or Biographical Sketches. . . . By S. T. Coleridge, Esq. New York: Kirk and Mercein, 1817. 2 vols. in 1. 8vo., pp. 183; 196.

See Christian Examiner, XIV (108–129), by F. H. Hedge.

29. Zapolya: A Christmas Tale, in Two Parts: The Prelude entitled "The Usurper's Fortune;" and the Sequel entitled "The Usurper's Fate." By S. T. Coleridge, Esq. London: Printed for Rest Fenner, Paternoster Row, 1817. 8vo., pp. [8]+128.

See Literary Gazette, 1817, II (307–308). The play was never performed and never republished separately.

30. [Israel's Lament.] A HEBREW DIRGE, chaunted in the Great Synagogue, St. James's Place, Aldgate, on the Day of the Funeral of Her Royal Highness the Princess Charlotte. By Hyman Hurwitz, Master of the Hebrew Academy, Highgate. With a translation by S. T. Coleridge, Esq. London: Printed by H. Barnett, 2 St. James's Place, Aldgate, and sold by T. Boosey, 4 Old Broad Street, 1817. 8vo., pp. 13.

See Shepherd-Prideaux, pp. (47–48).

1818.

31. The Friend: A Series of Essays, in Three Volumes. By S. T. Coleridge. A New Edition. London: Printed for Rest Fenner, Paternoster Row, 1818. 3 vols. 8vo., pp. ix+356; 336; 375.

The second edition, remodelled from the first, with the addition of much new material. See North American Rev., XL (299–351) by [G. B. Cheever].

32. Prospectus of a Course of Lectures. By S. T. Coleridge. [London, 1818.] J. Adlard and Sons. 4to., pp. 3.

See Gillman's Life of S. T. C., p. 329; also J. D. Campbell's Coleridge's Lectures in 1818 in The Athenæum, 1889, I (345–346, 568) and his Some Lectures Delivered by Coleridge in the Winter of 1818–19 in The Athenæum, 1891, II (865–866) and 1892, I (17–18).

1820.

33. The Tears of a Grateful People. A Hebrew Dirge and Hymn, chaunted in the Great Synagogue, St. James's pl., Aldgate, on the Day of the Funeral of King George III of Blessed Memory. By Hyman Hurwitz, of Highgate. Translated by a Friend. [i. e., S. T. Coleridge.] London, etc. [1820.]

The imprint corresponds to that of no. 30 above.

1825.

34. Aids to Reflection in the Formation of a Manly Character on the Several Grounds of Prudence, Morality, and Religion: Illustrated by Select Passages from our Elder Divines, especially from Archbishop Leighton. By S. T. Coleridge.

This makes, that whatsoever here befalls,
You in the region of yourself remain,
Neighb'ring on Heaven: and that no foreign land.
Daniel.

London: Printed for Taylor and Hessey, 93, Fleet-Street; and 13, Waterloo-Place, Pall-Mall, 1825. 8vo., pp. xvi+404.

See British Critic, LXVIII (239–280).

IV. WORKS INCLUDING CONTRIBUTIONS BY COLERIDGE

1794.

1. Poems, supposed to have been written at Bristol in the 15th Century, by Thomas Rowley. Che trae L'huome del sepolcro ed in vita il serba. Petrarca. Cambridge: Printed by B. Flower for the Editor, and sold by J. and J. Merrill and W. H. Lunn, Cambridge, Egertons, Military Library; Debrett, Piccadilly, Edwards, Pall Mall, and Deighton, Holborn, London. 8vo., pp. xxix + [iii] + 329.

This edition of Chatterton, edited by [Lancelot Sharpe] of Pembroke College, contained (pp. xxv–xxviii) an "altered and enlarged" version of Coleridge's Monody on the Death of Chatterton. The earliest draft (1790) and the latest form (1829) of the poem are printed in Poet. Works, ed. Campbell, pp. 8, 61, 562.

1795.

2. Poems by Francis Wrangham, M.A., Member of Trinity College, Cambridge. London: Sold by T. Mawman, 22, Poultry. 12mo., pp. viii + 111.

Contains (p. 79) Coleridge's translation of Wrangham's Latin verses, Hendecasyllabi ad Bruntonam e Granta exituram, followed by an original poem, To Miss Brunton with the Preceding Translation. See Poet. Works, ed. Campbell, pp. 30, 31, 569, and Shepherd-Prideaux, pp. 6–7.

1796.

3. Poems on the Death of Priscilla Farmer, by her Grandson, Charles Lloyd. [Motto from Bowles.] Bristol: Printed by N. Biggs, and sold by George Phillips, George Yard, Lombard Street, London, 1796. Fol., pp. 27.

This rare pamphlet contains a Prefatory Sonnet by Coleridge. The contents of the volume appeared in the second edition (1797) of Coleridge's Poems.

4. Joan of Arc, by Robert Southey. Bristol, 1796. 4to., pp. 409.

Coleridge contributed some four hundred verses to the second book, which were omitted in all later editions and which, after extensive revision, appeared as The Destiny of Nations in Sibylline Leaves (1817). See Cottle's Recollections, II, pp. (241–262). Four stanzas (with a literal translation) of Coleridge's Greek Prize-Ode on the Slave-Trade appeared in the notes. The complete ode was printed for the first time (1893) in Poet. Works, ed. Campbell, pp. 476, 477, 585.

5. Pamphlet of Selected Sonnets, from Bowles, Bamfylde, and others. With some original Sonnets by S. T. C., and a Prefatory Essay on the Sonnet. [Bristol, 1796.] 8vo., pp. 16.

A unique copy of this privately-printed pamphlet is preserved in the Dyce Collection at South Kensington. See Poet. Works (1877) II (377–379), and ed. Campbell, pp. (543–544). Cf. Shepherd-Prideaux, pp. (14–15). The edition consisted of two hundred copies sold at sixpence.

1798.

6. (A.) Lyrical Ballads, with a few Other Poems. Bristol: Printed by Biggs and Cottle, for T. N. Longman, Paternoster-row, London. 1798.

(B.) Lyrical Ballads, with a few Other Poems. London: Printed for J. & A. Arch, Gracechurch-street. 1798. 8vo. Title, pp. viii + 210 + Errata, 1 p. + Advertisements, 2 pp. [Two unnumbered pages between 69–70.]

Contains Coleridge's The Rime of the Ancyent Marinere, The Foster-Mother's Tale, The Nightingale, and The Dungeon; the remaining poems are by Wordsworth. Within a fortnight after its publication, Cottle, for some obscure reason, transferred the "largest proportion of the impression of 500" copies to Arch; hence the two title-pages. Only two copies with the Bristol title-page are known, viz., Southey's copy, now in the British Museum, containing Coleridge's poem, Lewti, for which The Nightingale was substituted at the last moment, causing the deranged pagination noted above; and secondly, the copy used by the late R. H. Shepherd in preparing the 1877 edition of Coleridge's Poetical Works. See Shepherd-Prideaux, pp. (19–20), which describes also a unique copy with the London title-page, owned by Mr. R. A. Potts, London. The Lyrical Ballads were reviewed in Analytical Rev., XXVIII (583–587); British Critic, XIV (364–369); Critical Rev., XXIV, n. s. (197–204), by [Robert Southey]; Monthly Mag., VI, p. 514; and Monthly Rev., XXIX, n. s. (202–210). There are two reprints of the first edition: by E. Dowden (1890); and T. Hutchinson (1898). See infra.

7. The Annual Anthology. Volume II. Bristol, Printed by Biggs and Co., 1800. 8vo., pp. [2]+299.

Robert Southey conducted this anthology for two years (1799–1800). Coleridge contributed the following poems to the second volume: P. 23, Lewti; p. 32, To a Young Lady;* p. 59, Recantation; p. 74, Lines Written in the Album at Elbingerode; p. 79, A Christmas Carol; p. 103, To a Friend, etc.;* p. 140, This Lime-tree Bower, etc.;* p. 156, Lines to W. Linley, Esq.; p. 173, The British Stripling's War-Song; p. 192, Something Childish, etc.;* p. 193, Home-sick;* p. 216, Ode to Georgiana, Duchess of Devonshire; p. 231, Fire, Famine, and Slaughter; p. 240, The Raven; p. 261, Epigrams; p. 291, To an Unfortunate Woman. The asterisks indicate that those poems (likewise several epigrams) appeared in this collection for the first time. There is on pp. (247–253) An Elegy Written in a London Church-Yard signed C. but not included among Coleridge's poems. See Notes and Queries (Ninth Series), VII, p. 8.

8. Lyrical Ballads, with Other Poems. In Two Volumes. By W. Wordsworth. Quam nihil ad genium, Papiniane, tuum! Second Edition. London: Printed for T. N. Longman and O. Rees, Paternoster-row, by Biggs and Co., Bristol. 1800. 2 vols. 8vo., pp. xlvi+210+[5]; [2]+227+Errata, 1 p.

Coleridge's contributions to the 1798 edition are reprinted with various textual changes, notably in The Ancient Mariner. His poem Love is also printed. See Hutchinson's reprint (1898) of the Lyrical Ballads, p. lvii; also J. D. Campbell's The Lyrical Ballads of 1800 in The Athenæum, 1890, II (699–700); and T. Hutchinson's The Text of Wordsworth in The Athenæum, 1896, II (35–36).

9. Memoirs of the late Mrs. Robinson, written by herself, with some Posthumous Pieces. 4 vols. 8vo. London (R. Phillips), 1801.

IV, p. 141, contains Coleridge's A Stranger Minstrel, addressed to "Perdita." See Poet. Works, ed. Campbell, pp. (624–625).

10. Lyrical Ballads, with Pastoral and Other Poems. In Two Volumes. By W. Wordsworth. [Motto as in 1800 edition.] Third Edition. London: Printed for T. N. Longman and O. Rees, Paternoster-Row, by Biggs and Cottle, Crane-Court, Fleet Street, 1802. 2 vols. 8vo., pp. [2]+lxiv+200+[4]; [2]+250.

Includes the same poems by Coleridge as in Second Edition, with the exception of The Dungeon. Cf. Hutchinson, op. cit., p. lviii.

11. Lyrical Ballads. . . . By W. Wordsworth. 2 vols. 8vo., pp. xxii + 159; 172. Philadelphia (James Humphreys), 1802.

The first volume adds the poem Love and the Preface and other preliminary matter of the 1800 edition to the text of 1798; the second volume is a reprint of the corresponding volume of the 1800 edition. See Campbell in The Athenæum, 1894, I, p. 213.

12. Autobiographical Sketch of Matilda Betham. . . . [Privately printed, 1802.]

Contains (pp. 9–12) Coleridge's verses, To Matilda Betham, from a Stranger, dated Keswick, September 9, 1802. The only known copy is in a volume of miscellanies bound up by Southey and now in the Forster Collection at South Kensington. The verses were first collected in Poet. Works, ed. Campbell, pp. 167, 630. See also Campbell in The Athenæum, 1890, I, p. 341.

1804.

13. The Wild Wreath. Edited by M[ary] E[lizabeth] Robinson. 8vo., pp. viii + 228. London (Richard Phillips), 1804.

Contains (p. 142) Coleridge's The Mad Monk.

1805.

14. Lyrical Ballads, with Pastoral and other Poems. In Two Volumes. By W. Wordsworth. [Motto as in 1800 edition.] Fourth Edition. London: Printed for Longman, Hurst, Rees and Orme, by R. Taylor and Co., 38, Shoe-Lane. 1805. 2 vols. 12mo., pp. [2] + lxiv + 200 + [4]; [2] + 248.

Coleridge's contributions appeared in this edition for the last time; the contents are identical with those of the 1802 edition. See Hutchinson, op. cit., p. lix.

15. The Poetical Works of Mary Robinson. 3 vols. 12mo. London, 1806.

Contains (I, p. xlvii) Coleridge's A Stranger Minstrel.

1810.

Contains (II, pp. 131–139) Coleridge's Ballad of the Dark Ladie under the title, Fragment.

17. Poetical Class-Book. Edited by W. F. Mylius. 8vo. London, 1810.

Contains Coleridge's This Lime-tree Bower, etc.

1812.

18. Omniana, or Horæ Otiosiores. By Robert Southey. London, 1812: Printed for Gale and Curtis, Paternoster Row. 2 vols. 12mo., pp. ix+336; vi+330.

Coleridge's extensive contributions are indicated in the Contents by asterisk.

1818.

19. The Encyclopedia Metropolitana. 4to. London, 1818.

Coleridge's "Preliminary Treatise," On Method, formed the Introduction to this work. There is an undated reprint of the essay in the Forster Collection at South Kensington.

37. Lucas, E. V. Charles Lamb and the Lloyds. Comprising newly-discovered Letters of Charles Lamb, Samuel Taylor Coleridge, the Lloyds, etc. Cr. 8vo., pp. 324. London (Smith, Elder, and Co.), 1898. [Also, Philadelphia (Lippincott), 1899.]

See The Bookman, IX (251–254). This work contains three of Coleridge's letters addressed to the father of Charles Lloyd in 1796.

38. Litchfield, R. B. Tom Wedgwood, the First Photographer. An Account of his Life, his Discovery, and his Friendship with Samuel Taylor Coleridge, including some Letters of Coleridge, and an Examination of some Early Photographic Discoveries. 8vo. London, 1903.

VII. BIOGRAPHY

1. [Allsop, Thomas.] Letters, Conversations, and Recollections of Samuel Taylor Coleridge. 2 vols. 12mo. Pp. xii+234; 240. London: Edward Moxon, 1836. [Also, 12mo., pp. xii+266. New York (Harper and Brothers), 1836, and Cincinnati (Josiah Drake), 1836.]

   The principal authority for the details of Coleridge's life from 1820 to 1826. A second edition, with a Preface by R.[obert] A.[llsop], appeared (London, 1858) and a third edition in 1864. See The Athenæum, 1835 (927–928, 941–942); Fraser's Literary Chronicle, 1836 (81–84, 101–105, 119–122); Monthly Rev., I, n. s. (1836) (87–101); Tait's Edinb. Mag., III, n. s. (113–123); Western Literary Journal, I (198–205); Westminster Rev., LXXXV (106–132).

2. Cottle, Joseph. Early Recollections, chiefly relating to the late Samuel Taylor Coleridge, during his long residence at Bristol. 2 vols. 8vo., pp. xxxviii+325; 346. London (Longman, Rees and Co., and Hamilton, Adams and Co.), 1837.

   A copy in the British Museum contains a second preface issued separately in 1839. Cottle was severely criticized for publishing several intimate letters referring to Coleridge's indulgence in opium. Far more serious were the liberties that he took with his material. Campbell said: "I have examined most of the original documents from which Cottle made up his books, and have found that, in every instance, they have been impudently tampered with." The book is indispensable, but must be used with caution. See The Athenæum, 1837 (343–344); Christian Observer, 1837 (594–611); Congregational Mag., I, n. s. (520–528); Eclectic Rev., II, n. s. (137–164), by J. Foster; Quarterly Rev., LIX (1–32), by [J. G. Lockhart]; Spectator, 1837, I (424–425); Tait's Edinb. Mag., IV, n. s. (341–348). See also the article, Horrors of Opium. Case of Mr. Coleridge in Christian Observer, 1837 (632–638). The Christian Observer, 1859 (374–385), purports to review "Life of S. T. Coleridge. By A. Cottle. 2 vols." but no such work exists.

3. Gillman, James. The Life of Samuel Taylor Coleridge. Vol. I. 8vo., pp. x+362. London (Pickering), 1838.

   Only the first volume was published; see the opening paragraph of De Quincey's Coleridge and Opium-Eating. Reviewed in British and Foreign Rev., VIII (414–451); Christian Observer, 1859 (308–318); Princeton Rev., XX (143–186); Spectator, 1838, I (396–397); Westminster Rev., XXXIII (257–302), by [J. S. Mill].

4. Cottle, Joseph. Reminiscences of Samuel Taylor Coleridge and Robert Southey. 8vo. London and New York, 1847.

This work is not a reprint of Early Recollections (1836); but a recast of the material, with some new matter and extensive omissions. See Athenæum, 1847, I, p. 620; Christian Rev., XV (321–353); Edinburgh Rev., LXXXVII (368–392), same article in Eclectic Mag., XIV (195–208) and Living Age, XVII (310–320); North American Rev., LXV (401–440) by C. E. Norton; The London Times, Nov. 3, 1847, also the letter from Mr. Thomas Holcroft on Nov. 4, 1847. Cf. I (237–254) of Samuel Phillips' Essays from 'The Times' (New ed., 2 vols. London, 1871). See also no. IX of E. A. Poe's Fifty Suggestions.

5. Coleridge, Henry Nelson, and Sara. Biographical Supplement. Appended to Biographia Literaria (1847).

Reprinted in Professor Shedd's edition (1853), and all subsequent issues.

6. Freiligrath, Ferdinand. Biographical Memoir. Prefixed to the Tauchnitz edition of Coleridge. Leipzig, 1852.

7. Weiss, M. Coleridge. VIII, pp. (569–575) of Michaud's Biographie Universelle (Paris, 1854).

8. [Shepherd, Richard Herne.] Memoir (I, pp. ix–cxviii) prefixed to his edition of the Poetical Works. London, 1877.

9. Boyle, G. D. Samuel Taylor Coleridge. In Encyclopedia Britannica, VI, pp. (135–138). (1878.)

10. Traill, H. D. Coleridge. [English Men of Letters.] 12mo., pp. xii+211. London (Macmillan and Co.), 1884. [Also, New York (Harper and Brothers), 1884. 12mo., pp. x+199.]

A new edition appeared in 1889. See The Academy, XXVI (263–265), by T. Hall Caine; Critic, II (278–279); Edinburgh Rev., CLXII (301–351), same article in Living Age, CLXVII (515–541); Literary World, XVI, p. 97; Nation, XXXIX, p. 549; Quarterly Rev., CLXV (60–96); Revue des Deux Mondes, CII (343–377), by J. Texte; Saturday Rev., LVIII (601–602); Spectator, LVII (1374–1375). See also article, Coleridge's Intellectual Influence, in Spectator, LVII (1370–1371), same article in Living Age, CLXIII (433–436).

11. Ashe, Thomas. The Events of Coleridge's Life. Pp. (xv–cxxvi) of his edition of the Poetical Works. London, 1885.

12. Brandl, Alois. Samuel Taylor Coleridge und die englische Romantik. 8vo., pp. xiii+437. Berlin, 1886.

A scholarly attempt at an analysis and exposition of Coleridge's intellectual development, but, unfortunately, marred by numerous errors. See The Academy, XXX (321–322), by C. H. Herford; Englische Studien, XI (139–141), by Max Koch; Revue des Deux Mondes, CII (343–377), by J. Texte.

13. Brandl, Alois. Samuel Taylor Coleridge and the English Romantic School. English Edition by Lady Eastlake (assisted by the Author). 8vo., pp. xvi+392. London (Murray), 1887.

With a frontispiece-etching of the Vandyke portrait. The errors of every description in this volume are far more numerous and less excusable than those of the original work. Many of Professor Brandl's translated quotations from letters, etc., appear to have been re-translated from the German without regard for the originals. Apart from the necessity for constant verification of statements and quotations, Brandl's treatment of Coleridge is valuable and suggestive. See The Academy, XXXI, p. 376; The Athenæum, 1887, I (791–794), a scathing review [by J. Dykes Campbell], which evoked a letter (Athenæum, 1887, II, p. 20) from Professor Brandl, but which was amply justified in the reviewer's reply (ibid., pp. 20–21); Quarterly Rev., CLXV (60–96); Spectator, LX (1660–1661). See also The Religious Opinions of S. T. Coleridge in Church Quar. Rev., XXVII (316–331).

14. Caine, Hall. Life of Samuel Taylor Coleridge. [Great Writers.] 12mo., pp. 154+xxi. London (Scott), 1887.

Contains the valuable bibliography by J. P. Anderson. See The Academy, XXXI (122–123), by George Cotterill; The Athenæum, 1887, I, p. 286; Literary World, XVIII, p. 219; Litteraturblatt, 1887, col. 439; Quarterly Rev., CLXV (60–96); Spectator, LX (293–295).

15. Stephen, (Sir) Leslie. Samuel Taylor Coleridge. In Dictionary of National Biography, XI, pp. (302–317). (1887.)

This article, which was corrected and annotated by the late J. Dykes Campbell, presented several important biographical facts for the first time.

16. Campbell, James Dykes. Biographical Introduction. Pp. (xi–cxxiv) of his edition of Coleridge's Poetical Works. London, 1893.

17. Campbell, James Dykes. Samuel Taylor Coleridge: a Narrative of the Events of his Life. 8vo., pp. xii+319. London and New York (Macmillan), 1894.

A revised and expanded reprint of the Introduction (1893), listed in the preceding item. A second edition, with a Memoir (pp. v–xl) of the Author, by (Sir) Leslie Stephen, appeared in 1896. See The Academy, XLV (141–143) and L (114–115), by Thomas Hutchinson; Critic, XXII, p. 154; Leisure Hour, 1894 (520–523), by John Dennis; Literary World, XXV, p. 60; Saturday Rev., LXXVII, p. 289, and LXXXII (128–129), by Edward Dowden; The Spectator, LXXII, p. 512.

Note.—Campbell's Memoir is the most reliable and detailed account of Coleridge's life now available. Mr. Ernest Hartley Coleridge, of Croydon, England, has been gathering material for many years for a definitive life of his grandfather. It is to be hoped that in the near future, Mr. Coleridge will find an opportunity to realize his plans and give the world an adequate biography.

X. MARGINALIA

A. Lamb, Charles. Books from the Library of Charles Lamb, offered for sale by Bartlett and Welford, New York City. (February, 1848).

This circular catalogue was reprinted in Historical Mag., IX, p. 45, and Literary World, III (10–11). See ibid., p. 785. The books included five volumes of Coleridge marginalia (see infra., nos. 4, 81, 97, 228, and 243) all of which were purchased by George T. Strong, and dispersed at the sale of his library. The most important marginal notes were printed in Literary World, XII (349–350, 393, 433–434). The subsequent history of the volumes in this collection is summarized in A Descriptive Catalogue of the Library of Charles Lamb (New York, 1897), prepared [by Mr. A. Growoll] for the Dibdin Club.

B. Scribner and Welford. Catalogue of Scarce and Valuable Books, including a Remarkable and Unique Collection of Coleridgeiana. 12mo., pp. 24. New York (Scribner and Welford), 1884.

This catalogue includes thirty-nine items of Coleridge marginalia listed below by their number in the "Scribner Catalogue." See Literary World, XV, p. 151, and The Coleridge Books in Professor Green's Library, in Athenæum, 1880, II (273–274). Most of these volumes were so successfully dispersed that a widely published appeal has failed to reveal their present whereabouts.

C. Taylor, William F. Critical Annotations by S. T. Coleridge. Being Marginal Notes inscribed in Volumes formerly in the Possession of Coleridge. Edited by William F. Taylor. Sm. 4to., pp. 48. Harrow, 1889.

This collection of marginalia was culled from volumes now in the British Museum and published privately in a limited edition. It contains several pages of marginalia in fac-simile, and, as frontispiece, a rare portrait of Coleridge. The volume is called Part I. and includes authors from A to F, but no more was published.

D. Wilson, John. Old Books, Interesting, Useful, and Curious, including a few with Manuscript Notes by S. T. Coleridge. 8vo., pp. 32. [London, 1880.]

A bookseller's catalogue including four Coleridge marginalia cited below as nos. 5, 137, 150, and 199.

E. Zimmern, Helen. Coleridge Marginalia. Hitherto Unpublished. Blackwood's Mag., CXXXI (107–125). (1882.)

The marginalia are from the volumes acquired by the British Museum at the sale of Dr. Joseph Henry Green's library.

1. Abbt, Thomas. Vermischte Schriften. 5 vols. 18mo. Stettin, 1772.

   From Dr. Green's library. Scribner Catalogue, no. 1.

2. Adam, Thomas. Private Thoughts on Religion. . . . Second Edition. 12mo. York, 1795.

   In the British Museum since Aug. 4, 1880. The marginalia are printed in Taylor's Critical Annotations, pp. (5–11).

3. Age. The Age. A Poem in Eight Books. 8vo. London, 1829.

   In the British Museum since Nov. 9, 1880. The marginalia are printed in Taylor's Critical Annotations, pp. (12–13).

4. Amory, Thomas. Life of John Buncle. London, n. d.

   From the library of Charles Lamb. Sold by Bartlett and Welford (1848) to George T. Strong, New York City. Bought by Mr. C. T. Frederickson at the Strong Sale, and by Dodd, Mead, and Co. (for $55.00) at the Frederickson Sale. Now in the possession of Mr. Harry B. Smith, New York City.

5. Anster, John. Poems, with some Translations from the German. 12mo. London, 1819.

   From Dr. Green's library. Wilson Catalogue, no. 192.

6. Asgill, John. Defence upon his Expulsion from the House of Commons. 8vo. London, 1712.

   The marginalia from this copy are printed in Liter. Remains, II, p. 397; and Works, V (549–550). See Table Talk for July 30, 1831.

7. Asgill, John. A Collection of Tracts. . . . 8vo. London, 1715.

   In the library of Lord Coleridge. The marginalia are printed in Liter. Remains, II (390–397); and in Works, V (545–549).

In the British Museum. The marginalia are printed in Liter. Remains, I (255–258); Works, IV (376–378); and in Newbery House Mag., VI (68–70) by Will T. Brooke.

Barrister. See under [Sir John Taylor Coleridge] and [James Sedgwick].

13. Baxter, Richard. Reliquiæ Baxterianæ: or Mr. Richard Baxter's Narrative of the most Memorable Passages of his Life and Times. . . . Fol. London, 1696.

From Dr. Green's library. Scribner Catalogue, no. 3. The marginalia (with the exception of some interesting personalia) are printed in Liter. Remains, I (263–266); IV (76–156) and in Works, V (316–364). This copy belonged to George H. Frere and is now in the library of Mr. Harry B. Smith, New York City. There is a "First Series" of notes on Baxter printed in Coleridge's Notes on English Divines, II (5–48).

14. Beaumont and Fletcher. Comedies and Tragedies. . . . Fol. London, 1679.

From the library of Charles Lamb. This famous copy, immortalized in the Essays of Elia, passed into the hands of Lieutenant-Colonel F. Cunningham, and at the sale of his library was acquired (August 1, 1876) by the British Museum for £25. The marginalia are printed in Taylor's Critical Annotations, pp. (13–19). See W. C. Hazlitt's The Lambs, etc., pp. (61–62); also J. Roger Rees' The Pleasures of a Bookworm (New York, 1886), pp. (59–62).

15. Beaumont and Fletcher. The Works. . . . Edited by Theobald, Seward, and Sympson. 10 vols. 8vo. London, 1750.

The marginalia are printed in Liter. Remains, II (289–292) and in Works, IV (199–201).

Beaumont and Fletcher. See also under Ben Jonson.

Bentley, Richard. See under [James Henry Monk].

16. Biographia Scoticana; or a Brief Historical Account of the Lives, Characters, and Memorable Transactions of the most Eminent Scots Worthies. . . . 8vo. Leith, 1816.

The marginalia are printed in Notes Theological, etc., pp. (157–165).

17. Birch, Walter. Sermon on the Prevalence of Infidelity and Enthusiasm. . . . 8vo. Oxford, 1818.

The marginalia are printed in Works, V (528–530).

XI. COLERIDGE IN FICTION

1. Lloyd, Charles. Edmund Oliver. 2 vols. 16mo. Bristol (J. Cottle), 1798.

In this novel Lloyd drew upon Coleridge's experiences at Cambridge and in the army, besides endowing the hero with certain characteristic traits of Coleridge. The latter was much incensed at the performance, which led to a lasting rupture of their friendship. There is a French adaptation of the novel by Madame de Genlis entitled La Femme Philosophe.

2. [Peacock, Thomas Love.] Melincourt. . . . 3 vols. 12mo. London, 1817.

Peacock, who satirized many of his literary contemporaries in his remarkable novels, introduced Coleridge into Melincourt as "the poeticopolitical, rhapsodicoprosaical, deisidæmoniacoparadoxographical, pseudolatreiological, transcendental meteorosophist, Moley Mystic, Esquire, of Cimmerian Lodge."

3. [Peacock, Thomas Love.] Nightmare Abbey. . . . 12mo. London, 1818.

Coleridge is herein satirized as Mr. Flosky (i. e., Φλοσκίος a lover of shadows), a lachrymose and morbid gentleman, who excelled all others in relating ghastly and dismal stories, and who "dreamed with his eyes open, and saw ghosts dancing round him at noontide."

4. Peacock, Thomas Love. Crochet Castle. . . . 16mo. London, 1831.

Coleridge figures as the transcendental poet, Mr. Skionar, who recommends the building of "sacella for transcendental oracles to teach the world how to see through a glass darkly."

5. Salzbrunn, Alice. Stilleben. Novellen und Skizzenblätter. 8vo. Bremen, 1868.

In this collection is included a tale entitled Veilchenduft which relates the pathetic details of a fictitious love-passage in the early life of Wordsworth. The period is that of the Lyrical Ballads, and Coleridge is introduced to emphasize the historic setting. For a synopsis of the story, see Knight's Life of Wordsworth, I, pp. (187–189).

6. Lord, Alice E. The Days of Lamb and Coleridge. A Historical Romance. 12mo. New York, 1893.

A rambling account of the careers of the two friends, incorporating most of the well-known anecdotes, though possessing little merit as a work of fiction.

XII. POETICAL TRIBUTES

A. Adams, Estelle Davenport. The Poet's Praise. From Homer to Swinburne. 12mo. Chicago and London, n. d.

B. Strachey, Mrs. Richard. Poets on Poets. 16mo. London, 1894.

XIII. PARODIES AND IMITATIONS

1. Byronius. Longinus o'er a Bottle. In London Mag., I, pp. 207, 329, etc.

   A coarse satire in the manner of Don Juan. Canto II, 6 (p. 329) is a brief parody of Coleridge in the style of Christabel. Wordsworth and Southey are satirized in the preceding stanzas.

2. Chapman, E. J. A Drama of Two Lives, The Snake-Witch, and other Poems. 8vo. London, 1899.

   The Snake-Witch is the most recent attempt to finish Christabel. See the pamphlet by "L." entitled A Sequel to 'Christabel' (8vo., pp. 23. N. p., May, 1899). There is a copy in Harvard College Library.

3. Edmonds, Charles. Poetry of the Anti-Jacobin. . . . Third Edition. 12mo. London, 1890.

   The New Morality (p. 284), and notes on pp. 294, 299, and 304 refer to Coleridge. See Campbell's Coleridge, p. 229 and note 1.

4. Hogg, James. The Poetic Mirror, or the Living Bards of Britain. 8vo. London, 1816.

   Contains two parodies of Coleridge entitled Isabelle and The Cherub.

5. Howitt, Mary. The Old Man's Story. In Ballads and other Poems. (12mo. New York, 1847.)

   An imitation of The Ancient Mariner. See Monthly Repository, III, n. s., p. 873.

6. Maginn, William. Miscellanies, Prose and Verse, edited by R. W. Montagu. 2 vols. 12mo. London, 1885.

   Contains I, pp. (75–79)—The Rime of the Auncient Waggonere; I, pp. (80–88)—Christabel. The Introduction to Part the Third. Both poems appeared originally in Blackwood's Magazine (1819) as the work of Ensign O'Doherty. Christabel was reprinted in Literary World, XIII (7–8).

7. The Rime of the New-Made Baccalere. 8vo. Oxford, 1841.

   A parody of The Ancient Mariner.

8. [Smith, Horace and James.] Rejected Addresses; or the New Theatrum Poetarum. 12mo. London, 1812.

   Contains the parody of Coleridge, Play-house Musings.

9. Sponge, Sir Vinegar. Christabess. By S. T. Colebritche, Esq. A right woeful Poem, translated from the Doggerel by Sir Vinegar Sponge. 8vo. London (J. Duncombe), 1816.

   A coarse satire on Christabel.

10. The Book of the Season. Contemplations of Coleridge in a Cavalry Regiment.

A poetical skit on Coleridge's difficulties in the King's Dragoons. Reprinted in Fraser's Mag., XI (422–423). (1835.)

11. Tupper, Martin F. Geraldine, a Sequel to Coleridge's Christabel, with other Poems. 12mo. London, 1836.

Geraldine is reprinted in Tupper's Poetical Works.

12. V. Christobell, a Gothic Tale. In European Mag., LXVII (345–346). (1815.)

This poem was published a year before Christabel and must have been written by some one who saw Coleridge's poem in manuscript. It was reprinted in Fraser's Mag., XI, p. 55, and in Literary World, XIII (25–26).

XIV. PORTRAITS

1795.

1. Vandyke, Peter. A portrait, formerly in the possession of Joseph Cottle; now in the National Portrait Gallery, London.

This is probably the best-known portrait of Coleridge. A reproduction in stipple by R. Woodman forms the frontispiece to the first volume of Cottle's Early Recollections (1837); a photogravure, frontispiece to Poetical Works, ed. Campbell (1893), and Campbell's Samuel Taylor Coleridge (1894); an unsigned etching, frontispiece to Brandl's Coleridge (1887); an excellent photogravure, inserted at p. ix of Hutchinson's reprint (1898) of the Lyrical Ballads; less satisfactory are the process reproductions in The Academy, LI, p. 179; and p. 30 of Lucas' Charles Lamb and the Lloyds (1898). The portrait also exists in a large Hollyer photograph, and in a small anonymous stipple engraving.

1796.

2. Hancock, Robert. A drawing, uniform with Hancock's drawings of Lamb, Southey, and Wordsworth. All four are in the National Portrait Gallery, London.

Reproduced in stipple engraving by R. Woodman as frontispiece to the second volume of Cottle's Early Recollections (1837); also as frontispiece to Poetical Works, ed. Ashe (1885). In Cosmo Monkhouse's article, The National Portrait Gallery, in Scribner's Mag., XX (317–333), all of the Hancock drawings save that of Southey are reproduced.

1798.

3. ————, ————. Coleridge at the age of twenty-six. A portrait, formerly belonging to Thomas Poole, and owned (in 1852) by R. P. King, Esq., of Buslington.

An engraving of this portrait, by W. Holt, forms the frontispiece to the Poems (1852); in later issues of this edition the 1814 Allston portrait was substituted. Sara Coleridge wrote that the portrait was "not altogether satisfactory, but the best and most interesting record of the poet's youthful face."

4. ————, ————. A pastel-sketch, made in Germany. Owned (in 1893) by Miss Ward, of Over-Stowey.

Reproduced in Illus. London News, April 20, 1893, p. 530; and in Letters (1895), I, p. 262. See also Mrs. Sandford's Thomas Poole and his Friends (1888), II, p. 79.

1802.

5. Hazlitt, William. A portrait, painted for Sir George Beaumont. Now at Coleorton Hall, Leicestershire.

J. D. Campbell, in his Samuel Taylor Coleridge, p. 134, incorrectly attributes this portrait to Hazlitt's brother, John Hazlitt. See W. Carew Hazlitt's Four Generations of a Literary Family, I, pp. (84–85) and Augustine Birrell's William Hazlitt (1902), p. 66.

1804.

6. Northcote, James. A portrait, painted for Sir George Beaumont. Now at Coleorton Hall, Leicestershire.

This is reproduced in the well-known folio mezzotint by W. Say. Southey wrote to Coleridge that this portrait "looks like a grinning idiot; and the worst is, that it is just like enough to pass for a good likeness, with those who only know your features imperfectly."

1806.

7. Allston, Washington. A full-length portrait, painted at Rome. Now in the possession of Miss Charlotte Dana, Boston.

This portrait was unfinished when Coleridge left Rome in 1806. It has apparently never been reproduced.

1811.

8. Dawe, George. A crayon-sketch, now at Heath Court, Ottery St. Mary.

Reproduced as a frontispiece to Lloyd's History of Highgate (1888); see also Letters (1895), II, p. 572, note 1.

1814.

9. Allston, Washington. A half-length portrait, painted at Bristol for Josiah Wade. Now in the National Portrait Gallery.

This is usually regarded as the best portrait of Coleridge. (See frontispiece to this Bibliography.) It has been reproduced in a striking mezzotint by Samuel Cousins, issued July 10, 1854. See also Flagg's Life and Letters of Washington Allston (1892), p. 106. A copy of the painting was made by Curnock, a Bristol artist, for Thomas Poole. See Mrs. Sandford's Thomas Poole and his Friends (1888), II, p. 317.

1819.

10. Phillips, Thomas. A portrait, now in the possession of Mr. John Murray, London.

Reproduced as a frontispiece (engraved by E. Finden) in Table Talk (1836) and (1851); also in Byron's Poetical Works, ed. E. H. Coleridge, III, p. 472. See Letters (1895), p. 699.

11. Phillips, Thomas. A portrait, now in the possession of Mr. William Rennell Coleridge, of Salston, Ottery St. Mary.

The late Lord Chief Justice Coleridge regarded this portrait of his grand-uncle as "the best presentation of the outward man." See Letters (1895), p. 699.

12. Leslie, Charles Robert. A pencil-sketch. In the possession of Mr. Ernest Hartley Coleridge, Croydon.

Reproduced as a frontispiece to the first volume of Letters (1895); and to Garnett's Poetry of S. T. C. (1898); also, engraved by Henry Meyer as a supplement for Colburn's New Monthly Mag., March, 1819.

1828.

13. ————, ————. A painting, made at Argyll Baths. In the possession of Mr. Ernest Hartley Coleridge, Croydon.

Reproduced in Letters (1895), II, p. 758.

1833.

14. Kayser, J. A pencil-sketch. Now in the possession of Mr. Ernest Hartley Coleridge, Croydon.

Reproduced in Illus. London News, July 8, 1893, p. 42; also as frontispiece to Letters (1895), vol. II. See Coleridge's poem, To the Young Artist, Kayser of Kaserwerth.

15. Wivell, Abraham. A half-length drawing.

Reproduced in an engraving by T. B. Welch as a frontispiece to Coleridge's Works (Philadelphia, 1852). The reference to "Wyville's proofs" in Letters (1895), p. 770, is evidently to this drawing.

16. Maclise, Daniel. A full length drawing.

Appeared originally in Fraser's Mag., VIII, p. 64 in the Portrait Gallery of Illustrations Literary Characters. Coleridge also figures in the famous drawing of The Fraserians. See frontispiece to William Bates' Maclise Portrait Gallery (1883).

NOTE.—A death-mask of Coleridge is reproduced in Laurence Hutton's A Collection of Death-Masks in Harper's Mag., LXXXV (781–793). There are several noteworthy busts of Coleridge. A bust by Washington Allston was exhibited in the Royal Academy in 1812, but has since disappeared. A bust by Dr. Spurzheim is now at Heath Court, Ottery St. Mary, and a similar bust is in the possession of the Coleridge family. See Letters (1895), p. 570, note. There is also a bust in the parish church at Highgate. The best-known bust is the one in Westminster Abbey, by Mr. Hamo Thornycroft, presented by Mrs. Duncan Pell, executrix for the late Alexander Gardiner Mercer. For a reproduction of the Thornycroft bust, see Illus. London News, July 8, 1893, p. 42, and Century Mag., LX, p. 60.
